Section Summary

THE MIDDLE KINGDOM

The Old Kingdom ended with the pharaohs in debt. Ambitious nobles serving in government positions managed to take power from the pharaohs and rule Egypt for nearly 160 years. Finally, a powerful pharaoh regained control of Egypt around 2050 BC and started a peaceful period of rule. This era was called the Middle Kingdom and lasted until Southwest Asian invaders conquered Lower Egypt around 1750 BC.

From where did the raiders who ended the Middle Kingdom come?

THE NEW KINGDOM

When an Egyptian named Ahmose (AHM-ohs) drove away the invaders and declared himself king of Egypt in 1550 BC, he ushered in Egypt's eighteenth dynasty and the start of the New Kingdom. Responding to invasions, Egypt took control of possible invasion routes by taking over areas such as Syria and Kush, and quickly became the leading military power in the region, with an empire extending from the Euphrates River in the northeast to Nubia in the south. These conquests also made Egypt rich, through gifts and vastly expanded trade routes. One ruler in particular, Queen Hatshepsut, was active in establishing new paths for traders.

Despite the strong leadership of Ramses the Great, a tide of invasions from Southwest Asia and from the west eventually reduced Egypt to violence and disorder.

Which direction would you go from Egypt to reach Nubia?

WORK AND DAILY LIFE

During the Middle and New Kingdoms, Egypt's population continued to grow and become more complex. Professional and skilled workers like scribes, artisans, artists, and architects were honored. These roles in society were usually passed on in families, with young boys learning a trade from their fathers.

For farmers and peasants, who made up the vast majority of the population, life never changed. In addition to hard work on the land, they were required to pay taxes and were subject to special labor duty at any time. Only slaves were beneath them in social status.

Who had a higher place in Egyptian society, farmers or artisans?

Most Egyptian families lived in their own homes. Boys were expected to marry young and start their own families. Women focused on the home, but many also had jobs outside the home. Egyptian women had the legal rights to own property, make contracts, and divorce their husbands.

What legal rights did women have in the Middle and New Kingdoms?
